Mow Selected to Speak at Conference

Education Department Chair and Professor of Education Cleo Mow was recently selected to present at the 2024 Rural Community College Alliance (RCCA) National Conference Sept. 18-20 at SUNY-Adirondack Community College in Queensbury, N.Y. The title of her presentation is "Marching Toward Excellence: Early Childhood Education (ECED) Bootcamp Adventures." Mow of Nogal, is an educator dedicated to student success and instructional innovation. She has a Bachelor's and a Master's degree and specializes in curriculum instruction. Cleo advises Phi Theta Kappa and advocates for early childhood education through memberships in NMECHTF, NAEYC, and MAEYC. As Education Department Chair and Professor, her leadership is collaborative and student-centered, shaping education for over 20 years.

ECED Bootcamps are designed to meet the needs of students in the Child Development Certificate accelerated program, offering a hybrid model that combines online learning with hands-on experiences. These courses cater to the diverse student population from across the state, providing comprehensive training in essential areas of early childhood education within a condensed timeframe while providing the essentials needed to obtain a position in an early Headstart or daycare center.
