

ENMU-Ruidoso Recognized for back-to-back National Community Engagement Award

The Rural Community College Alliance recently awarded the National Community Engagement Award to Eastern New Mexico University (ENMU)–Ruidoso Branch Community College for its Ruidoso Campus Connections program at the Annual Fall Conference Sept. 18-20 at SUNY Adirondack Community College in Queensbury, N.Y.

Chief External Affairs Officer Robin DeMott, President Ryan Trospser with the award, and Director of Community Development and Grants Nicole DeLorenzo in the new Campus Resource Room 121.

This award acknowledges exemplary community partnerships, community engagement, and outreach programs and initiatives that have had a significant influence upon institutional and student success and that demonstrate a commitment to excellence in connecting with our communities.

The ENMU-Ruidoso Campus Connections community development service program aims to create a climate of food security on campus through several systemic avenues: education and training, resource coordination, community partnerships and physical space for students, staff, and faculty to access food and prepare meals.

Through this program the Community Development Department creates “Campus Connections:” a community kitchen where students can access fresh food and prepare nutritious meals. With high rates of both food and housing insecurity in the college service area, providing a space where students can prepare food is critical for sustainably serving Ruidoso and the surrounding community.
